

Bachelor of Arts in Early Childhood Development

The Bachelor of Arts in Early Childhood Development program explores the cultural and social influences of the family and the community in the holistic development of young children. The coursework encapsulates theory and research in key areas of early literacy, preschool, first and second language acquisition, observation, assessment and intervention. The capstone course examines research and practice in early childhood and explores professional organizations and issues of advocacy for young children. Students will create and present a portfolio based on standards for early childhood educators as prescribed by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC).
